The Palgrave Handbook of Contemporary Gothic

Bloom, Clive (ed.)

(Palgrave Macmillan)

2020 : 03 866 p. Hardback 9783030331351 EUR179.99

The Palgrave Handbook of Contemporary Gothic is the most comprehensive compendium of analytic essays on the modern Gothic now available, covering the vast and highly significant period from 1918 to 2019. The Gothic sensibility, over 200 years old, embraces its dark past whilst anticipating the future. From demons and monsters to post-apocalyptic fears and ecological fantasies, Gothic is thriving as never before in the arts and in popular culture. This volume is made up of 62 comprehensive chapters with notes and extended bibliographies contributed by scholars from around the world.

Shakespeare's Fans: Adapting the Bard in the Age of Media Fandom

Pope, Johnathan

Palgrave Studies in Adaptation and Visual Culture (Palgrave Macmillan)

2020 : 02 184 p. Hardback 9783030337254 EUR69.99

This book examines Shakespearean adaptations through the critical lens of fan studies and asks what it means to be a fan of Shakespeare in the context of contemporary media fandom. Although Shakespeare studies and fan studies have remained largely separate from one another for the past thirty years, this book establishes a sustained dialogue between the two fields. In the process, it reveals and seeks to overcome the problematic assumptions about the history of fan cultures, Shakespeare's place in that history, and how fan works are defined.

These Fevered Days: Ten Pivotal Moments in the Making of Emily Dickinson

Ackmann, Martha

(W.W. Norton)

2020 : 02 304 p. Hardback 9780393609301 US$26.95

In These Fevered Days, Martha Ackmann unravels the mysteries of Dickinson's life through ten decisive episodes that distill her evolution as a poet. Ackmann follows Dickinson through her religious crisis while a student at Mount Holyoke, which prefigured her lifelong ambivalence toward organized religion and her deep, private spirituality. We see the poet through her exhilarating frenzy of composition, through which we come to understand her fiercely self-critical eye and her relationship with sister-in-law and first reader, Susan Dickinson. Contrary to her reputation as a recluse, Dickinson makes the startling decision to ask a famous editor for advice, writes anguished letters to an unidentified "Master," and keeps up a lifelong friendship with writer Helen Hunt Jackson. At the peak of her literary productivity, she is seized with despair in confronting possible blindness.

Mapping Tokyo in Fiction and Film

Thornbury, Barbara

Geocriticism and Spatial Literary Studies (Palgrave Macmillan)

2020 : 02 234 p. Hardback 9783030342753 EUR69.99

Mapping Tokyo in Fiction and Film explores ways that late 20th- and early 21st- century fiction and film from Japan literally and figuratively map Tokyo. The four dozen novels, stories, and films discussed here describe, define, and reflect on Tokyo urban space. They are part of the flow of Japanese-language texts being translated (or, in the case of film, subtitled) into English. Circulation in professionally translated and subtitled English-language versions helps ensure accessibility to the primarily anglophone readers of this study - and helps validate inclusion in lists of world literature and film.

2020 : 05 Hardback 9781788925396 £99.95 Paperback 9781788925389 £29.95

This book examines language teacher efficacy beliefs, focusing on the individual and collective beliefs of Japanese high school teachers. It discusses personal and collective dimensions of language teacher efficacy related to personal second language (L2) capability, instructional L2 efficacy and collective capability towards collaboration. The book provides a detailed discussion about the ways in which these beliefs develop and situates the findings within the wider field of teacher efficacy research. It helps further understanding of factors that may influence teacher self-efficacy and suggests new directions for research to explore in future studies.

2020 : 05 208 p. Hardback 9781788928182 £99.95 Paperback 9781788928175 £29.95

This book explores the impact of the spread of English on language teaching and learning. It provides a framework for change in English language teaching to better reflect global realities and current research. The authors examine the pedagogical implications of the global spread of English, drawing on world Englishes, English as a lingua franca, and global Englishes research. The book proposes key innovations for teaching English as an international language, and outlines key areas for future classroom-based research. The book is essential reading for postgraduate researchers, teachers and teacher trainers in TESOL and second language education programmes.

Terauchi, Hajime et al. (ed.)

Routledge Research in Language Education (Routledge)

2019 : 11 206 p. Hardback 9781138389342 £115.00

This book proposes a new paradigm for English language teaching based on concepts from English for Specific Purposes (ESP) research and applications as well as from growing evidence relating pattern recognition to language learning ability. The contributors to the volume argue that learners should not try to become proficient all-around users of 'idealistic native-like' English, but instead should be realistic about what they need to acquire and how to go about achieving their specific goals.

Translating Modern Japanese Literature

Donovan, Richard

(Cambridge Scholars)

2019 : 11 250 p. Hardback 9781527538429 £61.99

This book presents and comments on four short works of Japanese literature by prominent writers of the early twentieth century, including Natsume Sōseki and Miyazawa Kenji. These are their first-ever published English translations. The book is designed to be used as a textbook for the translation of modern Japanese literature - another first. Each chapter introduces the writer and his work, presents the original Japanese text in its entirety, and encourages students with advanced Japanese to make their own translation of it, before reading the author's translation that follows.

The Early Modern Travels of Manchu: A Script and Its Study in East Asia and Europe

Soederblom Saarela, Marten

Encounters with Asia (Univ. of Penn. Pr.)

2020 : 04 288 p. Hardback 9780812252071 US$69.95

In The Early Modern Travels of Manchu, Marten Söderblom Saarela shows how - through observation, inference, and reference to received ideas on language and writing - intellectuals in southern China, Russia, France, Choson Korea, and Tokugawa Japan deciphered the Manchu script and the uses to which it was put: recording sounds and arranging words. Söderblom Saarela focuses on people outside the Qing domain who had little interaction with Manchu speakers but who took an interest in the strange, new language of a rising world power. By exploring their first encounters with Manchu, he argues that their shared preoccupation with the script - the medium rather than the message - was intimately related to the globalization of the early modern period.

The Art of Persistence examines the relations between art and politics in transwar Japan, exploring these via a microhistory of the artist, memoirist, and activist Akamatsu Toshiko (also known as Maruki Toshi, 1912-2000). With abundant excerpts and drawings from Akamatsu's journals and sketchbooks, The Art of Persistence offers a bridge between scholarship on imperial Japan and postwar memory cultures, arguing for the importance of each individual's historical agency.

In the first full-length English-language study of Yumeji's work, Nozomi Naoi examines the artist's role in shaping modern Japanese identity. Addressing his output from the start of his career in 1905 to the 1920s, when his productivity peaked, Yumeji Modern introduces for the first time in English translation a substantial body of Yumeji's texts, including diary entries, poetry, essays, and commentary, alongside his illustrations. Naoi situates Yumeji's graphic art within the emerging media landscape from 1900s through the 1910s, when novel forms of reprographic communication helped create new spaces of visual culture and image circulation.

After two decades of restructuring, Japan is re-emerging as a major player in the new digital economy. Japanese firms now anchor many global supply chains with technology leadership in advanced components and materials, and quietly global manufacturing has become dependent on Japanese inputs. Lucrative new markets for corporate assets and consumer products are opening up within Japan. Japan offers an alternative model of 'caring capitalism' that is both competitive and more socially adaptable than the U.S. 'slash-and-burn' approach. This book offers an in-depth exploration of current Japanese business strategies that make Japan the world's third largest economy, a chief contributor to many global supply chains, and an economic leader within Asia.

With a new look at the 1880s financial reforms in Japan, Steven J. Ericson's Financial Stabilization in Meiji Japan overturns widely held views of the program carried out by Finance Minister Matsukata Masayoshi. As Ericson shows, rather than constituting an orthodox financial-stabilization program - a sort of precursor of the "neoliberal" reforms promoted by the IMF in the 1980s and 1990s - Matsukata's policies differed in significant ways from both classical economic liberalism and neoliberal orthodoxy.

In the wake of labor market deregulation during the 2000s, online content sharing and social networking platforms were promoted in Japan as new sites of work that were accessible to anyone. Enticed by the chance to build personally fulfilling careers, many young women entered Japan's digital economy by performing unpaid labor as photographers, net idols, bloggers, online traders, and cell phone novelists. While some women leveraged digital technology to create successful careers, most did not. In Invisibility by Design Gabriella Lukács traces how these women's unpaid labor became the engine of Japan's digital economy.

Immigrant Japan: Mobility and Belonging in an Ethno-nationalist Society

Liu-Farrer, Gracia

(Cornell U.P.)

2020 : 04 276 p. Hardback 9781501748622 US$39.95

Immigrant Japan? Sounds like a contradiction, but as Gracia Liu-Farrer shows, millions of immigrants make their varied lives in Japan, dealing with the tensions between belonging and not belonging in this ethno-nationalist country. Why do people want to come to Japan? Where do immigrants with various resources and demographic profiles fit in the economic landscape? How do immigrants narrate belonging in an environment where they are "other" at a time when mobility is increasingly easy and belonging increasingly complex? Gracia Liu-Farrer illuminates the lives of these immigrants by bringing in sociological, geographical, and psychological theories - guiding the reader through life trajectories of migrants of various backgrounds, while also going so far as to suggest that Japan is already an immigrant country.

Intimacy Across the Fencelines examines intimacy in the form of sexual encounters, dating, marriage, and family that involve US service members and local residents. Rebecca Forgash analyzes the stories of individual US service members and their Okinawan spouses and family members against the backdrop of Okinawan history, political and economic entanglements with Japan and the United States, and a longstanding anti-base movement. The narratives highlight the simultaneously repressive and creative power of military "fencelines," sites of symbolic negotiation and struggle involving gender, race, and class that divide the social landscape in communities that host US bases.

Why and how do territorial disputes that at one point mattered little, become salient? Focusing on non-state actors rather than political elites, Alexander Bukh explains how and why apparently inconsequential territories become central to national discourse in Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan. These Islands Are Ours challenges the conventional wisdom that disputes-related campaigns originate in the desire to protect national territory and traces their roots to times of crisis in the respective societies. This book gives us a new way to understand the nature of territorial disputes and how they inform national identities by exploring the processes of their social construction, and amplification.

Human rights violations have always been part of Asian American studies. From Chinese immigration restrictions, the incarceration of Japanese Americans, yellow peril characterizations, and recent acts of deportation and Islamophobia, Asian Americans have consistently functioned as subordinated "subjects" of human rights violations. The Subject(s) of Human Rights brings together scholars from North America and Asia to recalibrate these human rights concerns from both sides of the Pacific. The essays in this collection provide a sharper understanding of how Asian/Americans have been subjected to human rights violations, how they act as subjects of history and agents of change, and how they produce knowledge around such subjects.

Linkhoveva, Tatiana

Studies of the Weatherhead East Asian Institute, Columbia University (Cornell U.P.)

In this bold approach, Linkhoveva explores attitudes toward the Soviet Union and the communist movement among the Japanese military and politicians, as well as interwar leftist and rightist intellectuals and activists. Her book draws on extensive research in both published and archival documents, including memoirs, newspaper and journal articles, political pamphlets, and Comintern archives. Revolution Goes East presents us with a compelling argument that the interwar Japanese Left replicated the Orientalist outlook of Marxism-Leninism in its relationship with the rest of Asia, and that this proved to be its undoing. Furthermore, Linkhoveva shows that Japanese imperial anticommunism was based on geopolitical interests for the stability of the empire rather than on fear of communist ideology.

This book asks why, in the wake of the Cold War, Japan suddenly reversed years of steadfast opposition to security cooperation with its neighbors. Long isolated and opposed to multilateral agreements, Japan proposed East Asia's first multilateral security forum in the early 1990s, emerging as a regional leader. Overcoming Isolationism explores what led to this surprising about-face and offers a corrective to the misperception that Japan's security strategy is reactive to US pressure and unresponsive to its neighbors. Paul Midford draws on newly released official documents and extensive interviews to reveal a quarter century of Japanese leadership in promoting regional security cooperation.

Against the background of historical and sociological research into the rapid modernization of East Asian societies, O'Dwyer reviews several key Confucian ethical ideas and proposals for East Asian alternatives to liberal democracy that have emerged from this scholarship. He also puts the following question to Confucian scholars: what prospects do those ideas and proposals have in East Asian societies in which liberal democracy and pluralism are well established, and individualization and declining fertility are impacting deeply upon family life? In making his case, O'Dwyer draws upon the neglected work of Japanese philosophers and intellectuals who were witnesses to Japan's pioneering East Asian modernization and protagonists in the rise and disastrous wartime fall of its own modernized Confucianism.

Automobility and the City in Twentieth-Century Britain and Japan is the first book to consider how mass motorization reshaped cities in Japan and Britain during the 20th century. Taking two leading 'motor cities', Nagoya and Birmingham, as their principal subjects, Simon Gunn and Susan C. Townsend show how cars changed the spatial form and individual experience of the modern city and reveal the similarities and differences between Japan and Britain in adapting to the 'motor age'.

3.11後のジェンダー・文化・災害

Gender, Culture, and Disaster in Post-3.11 Japan

Koikari, Mire

SOAS Studies in Modern and Contemporary Japan (Bloomsbury Academic)

2020 : 09 256 p. Hardback 9781350122499 £85.00

On 11 March 2011, Japan was hit by the most powerful earthquake in its history, which triggered a devastating Tsunami, which in turn caused a disastrous nuclear meltdown. This triple catastrophe ushered in a new era of cultural production dominated by discussions of safety and security. Gender, Culture, and Disaster in Post-3.11 Japan re-frames fortification as a social project imbued with dynamics of gender, nation, military, and empire and, in doing so, Mire Koikari offers an innovative approach to post-3.11 Japan.

大日本帝国と第二次世界大戦の敗北

Imperial Japan and Defeat in the Second World War: The Collapse of an Empire

Wetzler, Peter

SOAS Studies in Modern and Contemporary Japan (Bloomsbury Academic)

2020 : 02 272 p. Hardback 9781350120815 £85.00

近年刊行された「昭和天皇実録」などの貴重な一次・二次資料を精査

Rooted in the perspective of the Japanese, Wetzler makes available to readers vital primary and secondary Japanese archival sources; most notably, this book provides the first English assessment of the recently-released Actual Record of the Showa Emperor. This original study presents a nuanced and sensitive account of the critical period between the fall of Saipan and the end of the Second World War. Imperial Japan and Defeat in the Second World War is an important advance in English-language studies of the Second World War in Asia, and is thus essential reading for all those wishing to understand this crucial period in Japanese history.

建国大学と汎アジア主義の経験

Kenkoku University and the Experience of Pan-Asianism: Education in the Japanese Empire

Kishida, Yuka Hiruma

SOAS Studies in Modern and Contemporary Japan (Bloomsbury Academic)

2019 : 10 288 p. Hardback 9781350057852 £85.00

Kenkoku University and the Experience of Pan-Asianism makes a fresh contribution to the recent effort to re-examine the Japanese wartime ideology of Pan-Asianism by focusing on the experiences of students at Kenkoku University or "Nation-Building University," abbreviated as Kendai (1938-1945). Located in the northeastern provinces of China commonly designated Manchuria, the university proclaimed to realize the goal of minzoku kyowa ("ethnic harmony"). It recruited students of Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Taiwanese, Mongolian and Russian backgrounds and aimed to foster a generation of leaders for the state of Manchukuo. Distinguishing itself from other colonial schools within the Japanese Empire, Kendai promised ethnic equality to its diverse student body, while at the same time imposing Japanese customs and beliefs on all students.

清水 唯一朗 著『近代日本官僚制の起源』

The Origins of the Modern Japanese Bureaucracy

Shimizu, Yuichiro / Ghadimi, Amin (trans.)

SOAS Studies in Modern and Contemporary Japan (Bloomsbury Academic)

2019 : 10 288 p. Hardback 9781350079557 £85.00

What is a bureaucracy, from where does it come, and how does it develop? Japanese have long described their nation as a "kingdom of bureaucrats", but until now, no historian has fully explained the historical origins of the mammoth Japanese executive state. In this groundbreaking study, translated into English for the first time, Yuichiro Shimizu traces the rise of the modern Japanese bureaucracy from the Meiji Restoration through the early 20th century. He reveals how the making of the bureaucracy was none other than the making of Japanese modernity itself. Through careful political analysis and vivid human narratives, he tells the dynamic story of how personal ambition, new educational institutions, and state bureaucratic structures interacted to make a modern political system premised on recruiting talent, not status or lineage.

ポスト帝国主義の東アジアで帝国に打ち勝つ

Overcoming Empire in Post-Imperial East Asia: Repatriation, Redress and Rebuilding

Kushner, Barak & Muminov, Sherzod (ed.)

SOAS Studies in Modern and Contemporary Japan (Bloomsbury Academic)

2019 : 10 264 p. Hardback 9781350127050 £85.00

When Emperor Hirohito announced defeat in a radio broadcast on 15th August 1945, Japan was not merely a nation; it was a colossal empire stretching from the tip of Alaska to the fringes of Australia grown out of a colonial ideology that continued to pervade East Asian society for years after the end of the Second World War. In Overcoming Empire in Post-Imperial East Asia: Repatriation, Redress and Rebuilding, Barak Kushner and Sherzod Muminov bring together an international team of leading scholars to explore the post-imperial history of the region.

福沢諭吉著作選集

Selected Essays by Fukuzawa Yukichi: On Government

Craig, Albert M. (ed.) / Craig, Teruko (trans.)

SOAS Studies in Modern and Contemporary Japan (Bloomsbury Academic)

2019 : 05 248 p. Hardback 9781350096615 £85.00

Fukuzawa wrote essays on the workings of such a system, drawing on his earlier travels abroad and his reading of de Tocqueville, John Stuart Mill, Walter Bagehot, and others. A realist and optimist, Fukuzawa assured his readers of the eventual success of parliamentary government in Japan. This book provides the first-English language translation of five essays that bear directly on the development of his thought and its legacy in Japanese culture.

日本統治時代の朝鮮における日本の林業政策

Seeds of Control: Japan's Empire of Forestry in Colonial Korea

Fedman, David / Sutter, Paul S. (ed.)

Weyerhaeuser Environmental Books (U. of Washington Pr.)

2020 : 06 300 p. Hardback 9780295747453 US$40.00

In this wide-ranging study David Fedman explores Japanese imperialism through the lens of forest conservation in colonial Korea - a project of environmental rule that outlived the empire itself. Holding up for scrutiny the notion of conservation, Seeds of Control examines the roots of Japanese ideas about the Korean landscape, as well as the consequences and aftermath of Japanese approaches to Korea's "greenification." Drawing from sources in Japanese and Korean, Fedman writes colonized lands into Japanese environmental history, revealing a largely untold story of green imperialism in Asia.
